The Kingdom of the Stone:

Daniel, xi., 34, 35, and 44, 45. Price 1s.

"Such are the chief points of interpretation brought out in this pamphlet. They are worthy of our consideration. Much light is certainly thrown on this passage in Daniel, and much also upon those kindred passages in the other prophets cited in illustration of the author's main position."—Quarterly Journal of Prophecy.

Apostolical Succession Overthrown.

By a Clergyman of the Established Church, &c. 2s. 6d.

"We recommend Apostolical Succession Overthrown, and Evangelical Succession Established, as a judicious treatise on this important subject."—Record.

"The author proves that the Apostles as such had no successors; that the commission given to them, as ministers of the Gospel, was totally distinct from the commission under which they exercised apostolical authority; and that the radical error of Rome and Romanizers consists in claiming not only the untransferable prerogatives of the Apostles, but even greater powers than the Apostles ever attempted to exercise.

"The argument is elaborated with much care, and the book deserves an attentive perusal."—Achill Herald.

III.

Daniel's Great Period of Two Thousand Three Hundred Days Discovered. 3s. 6d.

"The Work on Daniel is very admirable. It embodies a great amount of information, ancient and modern, especially on the true nature of the Papacy, and its position in the Prophetic scheme. It breathes a fine spirit, coupled with unflinching views of truth, and is a most valuable contribution to prophetic study."—Bulwark, February, 1856.

"This is a remarkably painstaking book both in argument and research. It presents much matter for our consideration. It is written with great candour. . . . It is impossible to do justice to the author's arguments by any fragmentary quotations. We should like to have cited the greater part of the five first chapters."—Quarterly Journal of Prophecy.

LETTER FROM A PROTESTANT CLERGYMAN TO THE ROMAN CATHOLIC INHABITANTS OF HIS PARISH,

On the "Letters Apostolic" of Pius IX., concerning the dogmatic definition of the Immaculate Conception.

By THE REV. RICHARD H. GRAVES, D.D.

"A calm and convincing refutation of the new article of faith. Dr. Graves observes, that the Bishop of Rome proclaims the novel dogma, and pretends to cut off from the privileges of the Gospel those who will not accept it at his bidding; first—on the authority of personal inspiration; secondly—on the authority of Scripture; and thirdly—on the authority of tradition. He enters into a full consideration of each particular of this threefold claim, and shows that they are one and all false and indefensible. His Scriptural refutation of the Immaculate Conception is decidedly the best thing we have read on the subject. We wish that our limits would permit us to transcribe the whole of our author's arguments, which extend through thirty-one pages of the pamphlet. We hope that this admirable tract may have such a circulation as its merits entitle it to. We know not how any inquiring and candid Roman Catholic could rise from the perusal of it without being convinced that the dogma which his Church endeavours to force on his acceptance as a Divine verity is a fearful heresy, opposed alike to Scripture and the voice of antiquity."—Achill Herald, March, 1856.

"Contains a full exhibition of the question, with ample quotations from the authoritative documents, and a refutation of the heresy. The work will be found useful to all placed in similar circumstances with the author, as well as to all engaged in the Popish controversy."—Bulwark.

"Among the numerous pamphlets which the dogmatic definition and authoritative promulgation of the Immaculate Conception has called forth, this letter is one of the ablest."—Daily Express.
